- The English lessons seemed to be repetitive for few times for the students as they had already undergone English Grammar classes during their preparatory year.
- More practical and less theoretical take on English was a very important lesson which was learned.
- Need of a permanent Sign language interpreter. As the entire class was consisted of SHI candidates it was really important to have an interpreter who is available for the entire span of the training.
- To identify a simpler content for Quantitative Aptitude as the one which was been taught was difficult for the students.
- Change the pattern of class delivery. More activity based classes and seminars are necessary for the students and few concepts had to be given to the students themselves to deliver.

BATCH-2

Learning from the experiences of the first batch, there were certain changes made in the curriculum and the delivery method for the 2nd batch. The most important change was in the content used for teaching English and Aptitude. The changes that were made in the 2nd batch are given below:

- English content was changed to the TISS module which had Reading, Writing and conversational English practices.

- Sessions for preparing and presenting projects based on the field of study of the students was also added to the new curriculum.
